

EVERYTHING MATTERS

GLOBAL TECHNOLOGY LEADERS SUMMIT

David Kirkpatrick
Senior Editor, Internet & Technology
Fortune Magazine

David Kirkpatrick, senior editor for internet and technology at FORTUNE, specializes in the computer and technology industries, as well as in the impact of the Internet on business and society. His Fast Forward column appears weekly on fortune.com, CNNMoney.com and through free e-mail subscription. (fortune.com/fastforward)

Kirkpatrick joined FORTUNE in 1983 and in 1991 began writing about computing and technology. He recently wrote "Microsoft After Gates." Other recent features include articles on Facebook, MySpace, Second Life, and Microsoft in China. He is regularly ranked one of the world's top technology journalists.

Kirkpatrick is the creator of the Brainstorm conference series and this year program director for Brainstorm Tech, a multi-disciplinary conference bringing together global leaders from technology, business, and other fields in Half Moon Bay, California July 21-23.

Kirkpatrick appears frequently as a technology industry expert on TV, radio, and Internet video.

In October 2006 Kirkpatrick was named to the World Economic Forum's International Media Council, consisting of 100 of global media leaders. He is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

www.dlapiper.com